BATTERY BACK WITH HONORS

LOCAL UNIT RETURNS TO MARYVILLE YESTERDAY.

WAS BEST CAMP EVER

Although Maryville Soldiers Did Not Win Regimental Cup, Individual Laurels Galore Were Captured.

Battery C, hot and tired but happy, rolled into Maryville at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon after two weeks of strenuous federal instruction at Fort Riley, Kan.

"It was the best camp ever," was the comment of both officers and men.

"We accomplished more in this camp than in any two others we have attended," Capt. E. V. Condon said. "The men were more onto their business and the battery functioned in a creditable manner from the moment we left until the time we returned."

Second honors in the 128th field artillery went to Battery C, the headquarters battery from Columbia winning the cup taken by the local organization last year. The Maryville unit, however, was successful in a number of contests in the regiment, and returned home laden with laurels.

Each year Col. Jack Williams gives sweaters for individual accomplishment in the regiment. Four of these were brought to Maryville. A driving team composed of Forrest Rinehart, George Hall, and Howard Bryant won distinction as the best in that class of contest. In the contest it was necessary to drive a team of six horses in a figure eight through stakes driven in the ground. This was done at a walk, a trot, and a gallop.

Individual honors in the riding contest went to Sgt. Gene Howard of the local battery. This was a hard contest and embraced all kinds of riding and saddling.

In the contest for the best gun crew in the regiment, Battery C was second, with a crew commanded by Sgt. Carl Hildreth and Corp. Eldon Dow.

In the instrument contest, Corp. Vodre Willoughby's squad took second honors in the regiment. This contest embraces naming points of all different instruments used in the detail, figuring deflection and range, and time and accuracy.

Ora Mullenax won honors in pistol firing, qualifying as a sharpshooter; and Sgt. Hildreth, Corp. Barnes, and Pvt. England qualified as marksmen.

Three promotions were made at the camp. "Tink" Wyman was advanced to the rank of sergeant and James Shepherd and Dennis Morrissey were made corporals.

No one in the local unit was injured at the camp. Captain Condon said that Battery C was the most mobile outfit which has ever gone out of Maryville.

Praise for the local battery and for the entire regiment was voiced by a number of regular army officers.

One said that there are only two regiments in the entire national guard who can harness and go out on fire with the speed of the 128th field artillery.

"This unit is as good as a regular army regiment," was the comment of General Rumbolt.

Capt. Clinton I. McClure, federal instructor recommended that Battery C camp at either Camp Knox, Kentucky, or Fort Sill, Oklahoma, next year.

All of Battery C returned to Maryville yesterday with the exception of Sergeant Howard and Corporal Shepherd. They remained at Fort Riley with the local battery's horses, which will be used by the Kansas guardsmen for the next two weeks.

The local battery started home at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, making the entire journey by special train.

Battery C will hold its regular weekly meeting tonight at the armory. But this meeting will be a pleasurable affair because it will be pay day.

That Captain Condon was A No. 1 battery commander at camp is the opinion of the men of the organization, voiced by several. The young captain handled his men well displayed remarkable executive ability.

Lieut. H. Frank Lawrence won recognition in firing at Fort Riley. His rating was excellent, a rank attained by six men at the school. Two of these were majors, two were captains, and two were first lieutenants.

Mr. and Mrs. James Greenlee and son spent yesterday in St. Louis.

SAYS DRY LAW IS STILL ISSUE

MUST NOT BE IMPAIRED, SPEAKER DECLARES.

CANDIDATES INDORSED

Proctor, Meredith And Cockrell Recommended To Dry Voters By Anti-Saloon League Representative.

David M. Proctor, Republican, and Judge Ewing Cockrell and Willis H. Meredith, Democrats, candidates for the United States Senatorial nomination, were recommended to the dry voters of Nodaway County last night by Dr. H. E. Corbin of Kansas City, a representative of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League, speaking at the union services at the Baptist Church here.

Neither Harry B. Hawes nor Senator George H. Williams, Democratic and Republican candidates respectively, were mentioned by name although the latter was indirectly assailed as "the man who refuses to definitely state his position on the liquor question."

A large crowd attended the union services. The Rev. William N. Dewar, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, presided. Union church services in the interest of prohibition were held in all towns of Nodaway County last night.

Dr. Corbin reviewed at some length the results of prohibition and what it has meant to the United States. He believes that increased criminal tendencies are not due to prohibition.

"Whenever a crime is committed nowadays, someone usually says it is because of prohibition," the speaker continued. "But this is not the truth as every fair-minded person knows."

Discussing the young men and women of today, Dr. Corbin asserted that they were "just as good if not a little better" than those of any past generation, and that "prohibition has not ruined our young people."

Wants Dry Candidates.

The Anti-Saloon League is not interested in any certain political party or any particular candidate, but its chief interest is in the election of drys to public offices, Dr. Corbin explained. This is necessary, he added, in order that the Eighteenth Amendment or Volstead law will not be impaired in the least.

The speaker briefly touched upon the record of Mr. Proctor and declared that he had supported a "bone dry" measure in the 1921 General Assembly and had always worked for dry measures. The Republican candidate opposed the present McCawley law because of a provision permitting transportation of intoxicating liquors "on the person," the speaker explained, and added that this was the "joker in the law we have now."

Dry Law Still Issue.

The Rev. John M. Mason of Rock Port also made a short talk in the interest of prohibition which, he declared, was "still a live issue." He called attention to the referendum to be voted upon this fall which would nullify the present dry law and leave prohibition enforcement up to federal officials. He compared this with nullification in pre-Civil War days and said the danger was just as great now as it was then.

The speaker urged all persons to go to the polls Tuesday and vote for dry candidates.

"If we do the job well Tuesday we won't have to worry about the November election," he said.

About 200 at Keller Farewell Lawn Party

About two hundred persons attended the seventh and farewell lawn party given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Keller Saturday night. A program consisting of readings, piano solos, talks and contests was given. Punch was served to the guests. The party was the most successful ever held by the Kellers during their seven years in Maryville. A cornet duet, composed especially for the occasion, was played at the meeting of the class yesterday morning by Marvin Westfall and Loren Schnabel. The number was entitled "From Friends to Friends," and was dedicated to Dr. Keller and E. W. Glenn, superintendent of the Sunday school at the Christian Church.

Another Arrested On Liquor Charges

Ray Langley, South of Guilford, Picked Up for Sale and Manufacturer of Intoxicating Liquor.

Ray Langley, south of Guilford, was arrested late Saturday afternoon on charges of sale and manufacturer of intoxicating liquor. Langley is said to have been connected with Ovid Rhoades, 18-year-old boy, who was arrested Saturday afternoon by Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell on charges of possession of a still, and the manufacturer and sale of intoxicating liquor. George Clemons, who was arrested on a charge of possession of mash, gave bail late Saturday evening for $500. The officers found the still and apparatus in a patch of weeds on a small island between the old Platte river bed and the new river bed on the Clemons farm Saturday afternoon.

NOTED PASTOR VISITING HERE

THE REV. W. A. SHULLENBERGER ARRIVES SATURDAY.

GRADUATE OF M. H. S.

Now Minister at Largest Downtown Church in United States, Located in Indianapolis—Family Here.

The Rev. and Mrs. William A. Shullenberger and family of Indianapolis, Ind., came Saturday night for a short visit at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. J. A. Shullenberger, and sisters, Mrs. Walter Westfall and Miss Florence Shullenberger.

The Rev. Mr. Shullenberger is pastor of the Central Christian Church, the largest downtown church in the United States and the largest Christian Church in Indiana.

He has been at the Indianapolis church for the last six months, going there from Des Moines, where he had been pastor for about ten years.

The Central church has an active membership of 2,100, the Rev. Mr. Shullenberger said this morning, and has just recently celebrated its ninety-third anniversary. A new building is now being planned and will probably be erected within a short time.

The Christian Church is stronger in Indiana than in any other state, according to Mr. Shullenberger. In Marion County, of which Indianapolis is the county seat, there are thirty-nine Christian churches, thirty-three of which are located in Indianapolis. The Central church is the "mother" of all the other Christian churches in the county.

While at Des Moines, Mr. Shullenberger was a special lecturer in the Bible department of Drake University and he will have a similar position at Butler University, Indianapolis, this fall.

He came to Maryville with his parents when he was but 3 years old. His father was a harness maker by trade. In 1899, the Rev. Mr. Shullenberger was graduated from the Maryville High School along with Jesse Hogan, Bruce Montgomery and several others.

He was prominent in activities at the high school here. He was pitcher on the baseball team and also played on the football team.

In the fall of 1900, he left Maryville for Des Moines where he entered Drake University. He finished his work there in 1905, after which he was pastor of the Christian churches at Grant City, Trenton, Mexico and then in Des Moines. In 1922, he received his Doctor of Divinity degree from Drake and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, national honary scholastic fraternity. He also took an active part in Masonic work at Des Moines. He was presented with a diamond set Masonic ring just before he left Des Moines.

COMPENSATION ACT DISCUSSED

DR. G. W. DYER SPEAKS AT COLLEGE THIS MORNING.

TALKS AGAIN TONIGHT

Vanderbilt University Professor Touring State Under Auspices of Associate Industries of Mo.

The humane side of the workmen's compensation law was discussed this morning by Dr. G. W. Dyer, professor of political economy of Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., before the student body of the State Teachers College.

Dr. Dyer is touring the state under auspices of the Associated Industries of Missouri.

Dr. Dyer will give an address on the workmen's law at 8 o'clock tonight at the First M. E. Church. The public is cordially invited to attend this lecture, which is sponsored by the Maryville Chamber of Commerce. There will be no admission charge.

Telling of the migratory influx to cities, Dr. Dyer explained the economic situation this has caused.

Simple Life Extolled.

"The rural home was self perpetuating; everybody in it was a producer and every child an economic asset," he said. "This life was simple and cost but little.

"The typical family of the masses in the city is not a producing institution. The man, in most cases, is the sole support of the family, and when he is injured, as thousands are, the family is without money, without credit and has nothing to fall back on.

"There is nothing so deadly to manhood and womanhood as charity, but these conditions tend to compel thousands to become virtual paupers and thereby destroy the very foundation of manhood and womanhood.

Tests Proved Value.

"Workmen's compensation grew out of these conditions. It originated in Europe, and after tests proved its value was adopted, one by one, by the American states. Forty-two states now have such laws, and many are agricultural states where the demand for such a law is not great.

"Strange to say, Missouri, for years a great industrial state, is without one and still is under the old common law with reference to compensation for injuries. In Missouri, the only recourse of an injured workman is to bring suit.

"This has created a most profitable field for damage suit lawyers, and it is not strange they oppose a compensation law. A workmen's compensation law means elimination of law suits, and means the paying to the injured person of the amount agreed on at the time he needs it."

Proposed Law Explained.

Dr. Dyer then explained the proposed compensation law for Missouri, providing for hospital treatment for injured persons at the employer's expense and payment of two-thirds of the man's wages, up to $20 a week as a maximum, as long as he is disabled. The proposed law provides compensation for life in permanent disability cases.

Dr. Dyer said the Associated Industries and the representatives of employes are asking that the people vote "yes" in the referendum in the November election of the compensation act.

In concluding, he pointed out the law would not cost the state an extra cent in taxes as even administration expenses would be paid by the employers.

Speaks of Leadership.

Dr. Dyer spoke to the students of the College as leaders. He pointed out that everything worth-while is so because of distinct leadership. He said that nothing is run by the people. It is the representative of the people who runs the government, the church, and the school, he said.

He arrived in Maryville on the early morning Wabash today. Tomorrow he will speak in Chillicothe.

Mrs. J. C. O'Rourke and daughter, Helen Marie, of St. Joseph are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Lehmer.

Mrs. Ford Here.

Mrs. Stanley R. Ford of Gatun, Canal Zone, arrived in Maryville at noon today to visit her son, Stanley, who has been at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. J. S. Ford, for more than a year.

HINT AT DEBT CONFERENCES

MELLON SAID TO BE INVESTIGATING EUROPE'S FINANCES.

DENIAL FOR REPORT

Dispatches From Washington Say Secretary Is Not Going To Mix Business With Vacation.

London, Aug. 2.—President Coolidge has instructed Secretary of Treasury Mellon to establish communications with various European governments and open discussions with them on the prevalent financial situation in Europe, according to the Geneva correspondent of the Central News.

The Central News' correspondent declares that Secretary Mellon informed him of this action by the President in an interview granted at Geneva while the secretary was en route to Rome. The correspondent declares that the Secretary refused to disclose the exact nature of the discussions which he had been instructed to open but it is reported they will concern European debts.

In all statements which Secretary Mellon has made here thus far, he has insisted that he is in Europe only on a vacation.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Secretary of Treasury Mellon will hold no official conferences during his European tour or will offer no suggestions to France or any other nation relative to financial reconstruction.

This statement was made at the treasury office today. In spite of press dispatches from abroad indicating that Mellon will confer with high officials relative to the financial situation, the treasury insisted that he was avoiding contacts with European leaders. A personal message received at the treasury from Mellon showed that he did not intend to mix business with his vacation.

OFFICER FEARS NO REVOLUTION

TWO WAYS OF SETTLING MEXICAN QUESTION TOLD.

WATCHING AT BORDER

Smuggling of Arms to Be Prevented If Possible—Priests Say Mexico Feared Catholic Influence.

San Antonio, Aug. 2.—There will be no revolution in Mexico if the Holy See can avoid it, according to Monsignor Tite Crespi, expelled secretary of the papal legation of Mexico.

Passing through San Antonio today en route to New York to await instructions from Rome, Monsignor Crespi professed to see two methods of settlement possible in the present Mexico crisis. One, he said, is to compromise between the Catholics and the government, and the other is by diplomatic intervention.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Special instructions will be issued by the United States customs service to forces operating on the Mexican border to exercise extreme precautions to prevent the smuggling of arms and ammunitions into Mexico, it was learned today.

While no instructions have been issued so far, officials here explained that the customs collectors along the border are familiar with the details of the arms embargo and that no doubt they have taken special steps to guard against smuggling.

Officials have no reports of attempts to smuggle arms into Mexico. The last efforts to smuggle arms into that country was reported in March, according to customs officials.

New York, Aug. 2.—Charges that the government in Mexico feared the educational influence of the Roman Catholic Church among the peons, or native classes, were made today by three priests from Mexico City. The priests arrived here today and will leave tomorrow for Spain. The priests told how they had remained in hiding for five months after passage of the Mexican law ousting all priests. They were finally ordered out of the country.

The law is supposed to cover all denominations but is "winked at" by all except the Catholic priests, they said.

Charges that the Mexican Federation of Labor is in close connection with Moscow and that their feeling is the same as the soviet had toward Roman Catholics were also made by the priests. The government represents but 5 per cent of the population because of the ignorance existing among the natives.

Mexico City, Aug 2.—Early efforts to effect peace between the Mexican government and the Catholic church have failed, it was reported today. Although no official statement has been made, it is reported that members of the diplomatic corps in Mexico City have made overtures, intimating to the Mexican government that they would be willing to use their good offices as an intermediary for peace.

Such overtures have brought no response from the government.

While there are many rumors that the church dignitaries are willing for mediation, it is said semi-officially that the government's attitude is that there is nothing to mediate since it is merely enforcing laws which are upon the statute books and that the only way in which the government's policy can be changed it through legislation.

Mexico City, Aug. 2.—The Roman Catholic Church of Mexico, working under orders from the Vatican, is fostering the development of an economic crisis in Maxico with an object of causing an overthrow of the government of President Calles, the Rev. Father A. Lopez, general secretary of the Mexican Catholic Church, charged today.

Prayers Offered Here.

Prayers were offered in the Catholic church of Maryville Sunday, for the Catholics in Mexico.

Obeying the request of Bishop Gilfillan that Maryville Catholics join with those in all parts of the world to pray for the safety of the Catholic clergy in Mexico and for the restoration of church property, priests in charge of Maryville services led the prayers.

By order of President Calles, and in accordance with the constitution of Mexico, church property there Saturday reverted to the government.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

THE LAST OF A GREAT LINE.

The sudden death of Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, removes from that state one of the last of its great leaders. Senator Cummins was recently defeated for renomination to the United States where he has served his state for the past nineteen years. Senator Cummins won his first prominence as a progressive and as an exponent of the "Iowa idea" of the tariff and, like William Jennings Bryan, lived to see the thought of the country overtake and pass him.

He had long since ceased to be regarded as a radical and was instead one of the stalwart party regulars. Senator Brookhart now represents the advanced thought of Iowa. Senator Cummins has not been in good health for a considerable time and his doctors forbade him to take any active part in the primary campaign that resulted in his recent defeat.

Iowa has produced many republican statesmen of great ability and high rank, but the stock seems to have almost run out in the death of Senator Cummins.

LONDON HEAT.

London has been sweltering lately in a hot wave. Or rather, in what our English friends mistake for a hot wave. The natives droop and melt in a temperature of 79 to 80, while the throngs of American visitors go about as usual, enjoying the weather.

There's something in the state of mind, no doubt. Those Americans are on vacation and the English are working. But there are other reasons.

The English are unaccustomed to heat spells such as Americans take as a matter of course. The British Isles are not only warm in winter, compared with most of the United States, but cool in summer.

Possibly clothing has still more to do with it. Londoners mostly wear heavy clothing through the summer, while Americans dress lightly. Almost any kind of weather is tolerable if one dresses for it. Still, our own cities are full of natives who never seem to have discovered that fact.

SUCCESS IN BUSINESS.

Mrs. Ora H. Snyder of Chicago, who started making candy sixteen years ago with a capital of five cents, and now employs 400 workers and has a big fortune, gives American business women this advice:

"Keep competent help and pay them well.

"Listen to advice, but manage your own business.

"You must like your work, to be successful.

"Get fun out of the job every day.

"Personality is the greatest factor in business, and a smile is the greatest factor in personality."

That doesn't tell all there is to the business success of this woman, or anyone else, but it will give any competent person a good start.

Mr. Andrews, government prohibition director, is not paying all his attention to the leakage at the bunghole but is over in England trying to stop the big flow into the top of the barrel.

The time for political charges, denials and recharges and counter charges is about ended so far as the primary is concerned.

Day by day in every way, the primary investigations show that Mr. Newberry of Michigan was just a common, ordinary piker.

The fight between Senator Williams and David M. Proctor for the Republican nomination for United States senator is not only a fight between those gentlemen and their friends, but it is also a fight for the control of the state machinery and lastly, but not leastly, it is a fight seldom equalled in bitterness between the Kansas City Star-Times and the Kansas City Journal-Post.

Illinois may be able to reach the dignified heights claimed by Pennsylvania in the senate primary investigation. They have already developed an expenditure of one million dollars in Illinois and have hardly gotten started.

There was once a wiser man in Rome than Mussolini and his name was Seneca. He said, "God made man into men that they might help one another." That's a good thing to think about in America as well as in Italy.

A jar said to be 30 centuries old and containing six small coins which archeologists say correspond to our pennies, has been dug up somewhere or other. There must have been a John D. Rockefeller in those days, too.

The Missouri Supreme Court has affirmed a judgment of $40,000 given against the owner of a chicken dinner farm near Kansas City. In 1922, a visitor was shot and seriously injured by another patron of the place. It was alleged that liquor had been served to the man who became quarrelsome and did the shooting and the owner of the place was held responsible for what followed.

Senator McKinley seems to have spent a lot of money in his unsuccessful fight for renomination but, according to the evidence, it was his own money and that is very much to his credit. It is getting to be a common thing for shameful amounts of money to be spent in campaigns for high office but it is as rare as ever for men to spend their own money or to take into office a clear title to their own conduct after they are elected.

Women who are now endowed with both the privileges and responsibilities of the ballot should not forget to vote in the primary elections tomorrow. Don't let anybody tell you this election doesn't amount to anything. The next United States senator from Missouri will be chosen, a congressman, a supreme court justice, other state officers, and the county officials who will administer the affairs of this county for from two to four years will be selected. These men will represent you in Congress and help make or enforce the laws of the country. The supreme judge will help construe and interpret the laws of Missouri which is oftimes vastly important and the county officials will conduct the county business and spend the money you pay to the county in taxes. It is all exceedingly important and no one can do your voting but yourself. Don't leave the job to the men to whom you used to point as incompetent to represent you at the polls. Go out and do your own voting.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington—No wonder the government finds a nationally owned merchant marine unprofitable.

If one of the Shipping Board's lines is operating at a hopeless loss, the board hangs onto it and keeps the ships running, the government pouring up the money to meet the deficit.

If a line is paying, the board immediately becomes anxious to sell it as soon as it can, for pretty much anything it can get.

If a line looks as if it might pay before long, the board wants to sell that, too, and is willing to make the terms so reasonable that the purchaser will find the transaction a paying one in the long run, even if it does take him a few months to begin making a margin of profit.

Unbusinesslike

A business man who sold all his dividend-paying stocks far below their market value and hoarded those on which he was being regularly assessed would hardly expect to grow rich.

However, such is the government's policy with its merchant ships.

The explanation, of course, is that President Coolidge represents a school of thought which holds that a government should engage in no commercial ventures, or being so engaged, should get out of it as speedily as possible and at almost any cost.

It simply cannot sell vessels that promise to cost a private company money to operate, even as a gift.

It stands some chance of disposing of lines which pay or promise to pay soon, but prospective purchasers, aware how desperately anxious it is to sell, are more moderate in their bids.

New to Them

This policy of keeping what is worse than worthless and getting rid, at a sacrifice, of what yields handsome returns, is one which the president has had some difficulty in instilling into the minds of the men at the head of the governmentally owned merchant marine.

The Shipping Board balked at first. Finally, however, by appointing new and more manageable members, when old members' terms expired, he got a working majority on the board, with Chairman T. V. O'Connor at its head.

Vice-Chairman Plummer and Admiral Berson, minority members, continue to protest with all their might, but are voted down now, every time.

FARM GLIMPSES

By BILLY TILSON

The Tom O'Day field of wheat, northeast of Maryville, averaged around 40 bushels per acre .The Lowden boys did the threshing. They are at the field of Ernest Wray and will thresh his oats and will then pull their machine under the shed.

Frank Wallace of Maryville has five acres of melons comprising 2400 hills and will in about ten days be furnishing large juicy watermelons to his patrons.

John Allen, south of Clyde, was transacting business in Maryville Saturday. Mr. Allen says corn is looking good down that way, wheat and oats making a fair yield. Pastures are good but rain is needed in that vicinity as the rains of a few days ago failed to reach them.

Ernest Bainum, east of Skidmore, had a field of wheat that averages forty bushels per acre. Ernest has a great field of corn that is now too hard for roasting ears. This field of corn was planted early.

Joe Norman, northeast of Elmo, was visiting in the city Saturday. He says grass is needing rain up that way. Corn isn't suffering but will be if rain holds off very long. He says threshing is mostly done.

J. W. Moss, northwest of Ravenwood, says they only received a small sprinkle of rain over his way and they are needing it now.

Doris Bishop, Ravenwood, threshed a field of oats last week that averaged 52 bushels per acre and were a fine grade.

Hugh Thrasher, southeast of Ravenwood, says the grain over that way is about all in the bin! Rain is beginning to be needed in that community.

D. Clark Gray and family were visiting in Maryville Saturday. Mr. Gray says the threshing will be mostly all done this week and reports a better yield of oats than was expected earlier in the season.

Henry Seipel, southwest of Maryville, had the misfortune to break his arm last week by getting it caught in the belt on his threshing machine. This will keep Henry out of work for some time and at a busy time.

John Myers, southwest of town, has his threshing outfit at John Deardoff's and will finish there today. John says wheat and oats are making only a fair yield but it is all of a good quality.

Former Judge Jacob Shamberger, northeast of Graham was a Maryville visitor Saturday. Mr. Shamberger says conditions down his way are looking good. Wheat and oats are making a fair crop. Corn is looking like a large yield and pastures are in excellent condition and stock of all kinds making good gains.

Guy Mutz southwest of Maryville, threshed 1,454 bushels of fine oats off 30 acres of ground, nearly 50 bushels per acre.

Donald Goforth went to Kansas City today to spend a few days with his uncle, Cecil Goforth, who is with the Moon Motor Car corporation.

Mrs. H. J. Dunshee and son, Edward, of Stanberry came Saturday evening to visit the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Godsey.

Mrs. George Kirchhofer returned last night from a two weeks' visit with relatives at Kidder, Mo., and Humboldt, Neb.

Vacation Trip to California.

HAINES TELLS OF FALL WEAR

COATS AND DRESSES TO BE IN STRAIGHT LINES.

MUCH FUR TRIMMING

Local Merchant And Brother Travel 4,000 Miles In Twenty-Three Days —All Pavement From Savannah.

Coats and dresses for fall will be in straight lines and the former will be heavily trimmed with fur, according to Harvey L. Haines, Maryville dry goods merchant, who returned late Saturday from a twenty-three day automobile trip to eastern markets.

Mr. Haines and his brother, C. S. Haines of Sabetha, Kan., traveled 4,000 miles through sixteen states in their trip. All of the driving done in the Haines automobile was on paving with the exception of twenty-three miles of dirt road between here and St. Joseph.

The 1,414 miles between Maryville and New York were made in forty-three hours of driving time, and the longest drive made in one day was 421 miles. The two men spent ten days in New York City.

Mr. Haines and his brother visited all of the New England states.

"We liked the trip, but Maryville is the best place after all," Harvey L., said. "Why, I wouldn't live in New England if you'd give me a deed to the whole place."

Mr. Haines said that he played golf in a most beautiful place, Poland Springs, Me. He refused, however, to make public his score.

An interesting thing seen on the trip was the construction of a rock road in Maine. Teams of oxen were used in the construction.

But back to the fall fashions. To be quite right, the lady will wear black, claret red, carmel, crackle blue, or green. Dresses and cloaks will be straight, and there will be quite a great deal of fancy trimming on the former. Nude shades will be popular in hosiery.

A world of large-plaid coats of imported materials will be the thing for sport wear, and handbags will be of the pouch effect.

Hats will be large.

The two brothers traveled 4,000 miles. Of this distance, 3,600 miles were by automobile and 400 miles by water. From Buffalo to Cleveland and then to Detroit the travel was by water on the Great Lakes. This was at night.

Mr. Haines and his brother reached Maryville about 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

"Boy, this old town surely looked good to Number One," the merchant said. "After all, there's no place like home. No sir."

And he lit a fresh cigar.

Gruesome Evidence in Double Killing Found

Health Officer Who Made Examination Of Bodies Of Pastor And Singer Discloses Findings.

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug 2.—Sensational evidence "too gruesome in its details to be made generally public" but upsetting all previous theories of the crime by indications that the Rev. Edward H. Hall and his pretty choir singer, Mrs. Elenore R. Mills, were murdered as they sat side by side in their automobile, was revealed here today by E. I. Cronk, health officer of New Brunswick.

Dr. Cronk was one of four physicians who was present at the autopsy on the bodies of the pastor and Mrs. Mills. The record of their finding which, Dr. Cronk declared, has a vital bearing on the criminal aspects of the case, never was presented to the grand jury.

Proposes Gas Tax for Street Fund

Poplar Bluff, Mo., July 31.—A one cent a gallon gasoline tax for Poplar Bluff has been proposed by citizens here as a means of successfully handling the street cleaning and maintenance problem.

Many cities in the state, it is pointed out, have a gasoline tax, among them being Jefferson City where about $10,000 a year goes into special street funds from this source. It is argued that the tax is a means of keeping the streets clean and inviting in appearance. Also, it is pointed out, as traffic increase, the gravel connections between city pavements and state highways may prove inadequate and paving may be necessary.

More Prominence for Anti-Saloon League

May Again Be Brought Into Spotlight Through Investigation in Illinois Primary.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—The Anti-Saloon League after weathering the gale of pitiless publicity during the Pennsylvania Senatorial investigation, may again be brought into the spotlight by the Senate slush fund committee as a sidelight of its inquiry into the million-dollar Illinois primary, it was learned today.

In the primary campaign, the League had indorsed both Col. Frank L. Smith, who won the Republican nomination at a cost of $475,682 and Senator William B. McKinley, who spent $346,616 out of his own pocket to be defeated.

Reports have reached the committee that the League was active in the early part of the primary and is now preparing a huge drive to elect Smith, a pronounced dry, in the November election over George E. Brennan, Democratic czar of Illinois, who is ringing wet.

The League's Illinois organization spent $1,356,439 since the advent of national prohibition, the committee was told by Wayne B. Wheeler, dry generalisime, during the Pennsylvania inquiry.

THE REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL CONTEST

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS

An article appeared in the Democrat-Forum and Tribune of Friday's issue under the signature of Mr. Fred Hull which should not go unanswered by those Republicans who hold a different view on the matters contained in his article.

It is true, as was said by him, that on next Tuesday the voters are given the privilege under the law of expressing their choice from among their candidates who have offered themselves for the various offices to be filled at the November election.

Some of his statements should be given careful consideration. He says, "There are three candidates before the Republican voters for the senatorial nomination, one of these candidates is Blodgett Priest, who says he is a sopping wet, another is David M. Proctor who says he is bone dry, the third candidate is George H. Williams." Mr. Hull very adroitly refrained from telling the voters of this county whether Senator Williams is "sopping wet" or "bone dry," but contents himself in his article by saying that the brilliant achievements of Senator Williams have been somewhat overshadowed by a fictitious issue. Those who read Mr. Williams' speech at California remember that he dropped this "fictitious issue" by saying that if he lived in Kansas he would be dry. By living in Missouri he wants the people to tell him whether he is dry or wet. If the prohibition question is a fictitious issue and is being pressed down upon the brow of Senator Williams he has brought that condition upon himself.

Mr. Hull says that Senator Williams' troubles have been heaped upon him by Walter S. Dickey. Mr. Hull has forgotten, but the Republican voters of this county will remember that it has only been two short years ago when Mr. Hull and Mr. Dickey slept in the same Republican bed in their effort to elect Mr. R. R. Brewster United States Senator. Reference to the files of Mr. Hull's paper, The Tribune, in that campaign no where will you find a charge against Walter S. Dickey. He was all right then, but is all wrong now in the eyes of our good friend, Mr. Hull.

In giving to the voters of this county an answer to their demand that Senator Williams state his views on the question of prohibition, Mr. Hull again contents himself by saying that the wet and dry issue is a sham. We believe that there are thousands of men and women in our county who do not believe that this all important question is a sham. They have shown that by their loyal support they have given to our Sheriff and our Prosecuting Attorney in their effort to enforce the prohibition law. The voters of our county will bear in mind that at the November election you will be called upon to say whether or not the prohibition laws of the State of Missouri shall be wiped off the statute books. It will be the most important question that has been submitted to the people of our state since slavery and they should now state their opinion. Those Republicans who believe in the enforcement of the prohibition law say, that the head of the ticket, and the man who will control the party organization should be a dry man.

The Nominee of the Republican party for United States Senator will dictate the policies of the Republican organization; he will say whether or not there will be a wet plank or a dry plank in the party's platform. He will say whether, or not, the chairman of the next Republican state committee will be a wet man or a dry man. Now is the time to vote for the good of the party.

David M. Proctor will not permit a wet plank in the Republican platform. Upon every issue he will stand for the dry cause and with all due respect to Mr. Hull, the article is prepared and published for the sole purpose of lulling to sleep those Republicans who believe in the rigid enforcement of the prohibition laws to get their vote for Senator Williams and away from David M. Proctor.

You, Republican Voters, should not be so deceived but on Tuesday you should vote your principles and stand by your cause and cast your ballot for David M. Proctor for United States Senator and let us begin the fight by accepting the issue as thrust upon the Republican voters by the wets.

Poison Liquor in U. S. Debated in Commons

Member of Parliament Declares American Victims of Alcohol Smuggled Into America By U. S. Citizens.

London, Aug. 2.—Alcoholic poisoning in Buffalo and other points along the Canadian border was the subject of bitter debate in the House of Commons this afternoon. The Rev. Fred MasQuiston, M. P. of Glasgow, attacked the recent Anglo-American agreement for the suppression of rum running and declared that General Andrews, American prohibition director, might better have spent his time in keeping American poisoned alcohol out of Canada.

"Have you been informed of American citizens being poisoned by liquor smuggled by their own nationality into the United States?" asked MacQuiston of Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister. "Has your attention been called to the poisoning of more than a score of British subjects in British territory by drinks smuggled by Americans into British territory?"

Sir Austen said he deprecated the tone of the Rev. Mr. Macquiston's remarks and that there is no doubt but what both America and Canada are trying to put down illegal smuggling across the border.

The GIRL in the MIRROR

By Elizabeth Jordan

COPYRIGHT BY THE CENTURY COMPANY

THE STORY.

CHAPTER I.—Barbara Devon's wedding and departure of her honeymoon leaves her brother "Laurie," successful playright but somewhat inclined to wildness, without her restraining influence. His theatrical associates, Rodney Bangs and Jacob Epstein, promise to "keep an eye on him."

If Bangs had indulged in any dream of a change of life in Laurie, however, following this reconciliation, the next few days destroyed the tender shoots of that hope. Laurie's manner retained its pleasant comaraderie, but work and he met as strangers and passed each other by. The routine of his days remained what they had been during the past five weeks. He gadded about, apparently harmlessly, came home at shocking hours, and spent most of the bracing January days wrapped in a healthful slumber that infuriated Bangs, who wandered in and out of their apartment like an unhappy ghost. On the rare occasions when he and Rodney lunched or dined together, Laurie was entirely good-humored and when Epstein was with them seemed wholly impervious to any hints thrown out, none too subtly, by his producing partner.

"Listen, Laurie," said that disgusted individual, almost a month after the new year had been ushered in, "the new year's here. That's a good time for a young fella to get busy again on somethin' vorth while. Ain't I right?"

Laurie suppressed a yawn and carefully struck off with his little finger the firm ash of an excellent cigarette. He was consuming thirty or forty cigarettes a day, and his nerves were beginning to show the effect of this indulgence.

"I believe it is," he courteously agreed. "It has been earnestly recommended to the young as a good time to start something."

"Vell," Epstein's voice took on the guttural notes of his temperamental moments, "don't that mean nothin' to you?"

Laurie grinned. He had caught the quick look of warning Bangs shot at the producer and it amused him.

"Not yet," he said. "Not till I've had my adventure."

Epstein sniffed.

"The greatest adventure in life," he stated dogmatically, "is to make a lot of money. I tell you vy. Because then you got all the other adventures you can handle, trying to hold on to it!"

Bangs, who was developing a new and hitherto unsuspected vein of tact, encouraged Epstein to enlarge on this congenial theme. He now fully realized that Devon would go his own gait until he wearied of it, and that no argument or persuasion could enter his armor-clad mind. The position of Bangs was a difficult one, for while he was accepting and assimilating this unpleasant fact, Epstein and Haxon—impatient men by temperament and without much training in self-control—were getting wholly out of patience and therefore out of hand. Haxon, indeed, was for the time entirely out of hand, for he had finally started the rehearsals of a new play which, he grimly informed Bangs, would make "The Man Above" like like a canceled postage-stamp.

Bangs repeated the comment to his chum the next morning, during the late dressing-hour which now gave them almost their only opportunity for a few words together. He had hoped it would make an impression, and he listened with pleasure to a sharp exclamation from Laurie, who chanced to be standing before the door mirror in the dressing-room, brushing his hair. The next instant Bangs realized that it was not his news which had evoked the tribute of that exclamation.

"Come here!" called Laurie, urgently. "Here's something new; and, by Jove, isn't she a beauty!"

Bangs interrupted his toilet to lounge across the room. Looking over Laurie's shoulder, his eyes found the exposure that held the gaze of his friend. The wide-open studio window was again reflected in the mirror, but with another occupant.

This was a girl, young and lovely. She appeared in the window like a half-length photograph in a frame. Her body showed only from above the waist. Her elbows were on the sill. Her chin rested in the hollows of her cupped hands. Her wavy hair, parted on one side and drawn softly over the ears in the fashion of the season, was reddish-gold. Her eyes were brown, and very thoughtful. Down-dropped, they seemed to start at something on the street below, but the girl's expression was not that of one who was looking at an object with interest. Instead she seemed lost in a deep and melancholy abstraction.

"Isn't she charming!" he cried again.

Bangs' reply revealed a severely practical side of his nature.

"She'll have a beastly cold in the head if she doesn't shut that window," he grumpily suggested. His interest, too, was aroused. He stared at the girl in the mirror with an attention almost equal to Laurie's.

As they looked ,she suddenly stirred and moved backward, as if occultly warned of their survey. They saw her close the window, and, drawing a chair close to it, sit down and start out through the pane, still with that intent, impersonal expression. Bangs strolled back to the dressing case and resumed his interrupted toilet. Laurie, fumbling vaguely with his brushes, kept his eyes on the girl in the mirror.

Her Elbows Were on the Sill. Her Chin Rested in the Hollow of Her Cupped Hands.

"She's a wonder. Prettiest girl I've ever seen. I think," he reflected aloud.

Bangs snorted.

"She's probably a peroxide," he said. "Even if she isn't, she can't hold a candle to your sister."

"Oh, Barbara—" Laurie considered the question of Barbara's beauty as if it were new to him. "Babs is good-looking," he handsomely conceded. "But there's something about this girl that's unusual. Perhaps it's her expression. She doesn't look happy."

Bangs sighed with ostentation.

"If you want to study some one that isn't happy, look at me," he invited warmly. "If that play of mine isn't out of me pretty soon, I'll have to have an operation!"

Laurie made no reply to this pathetic prediction, and Bangs sadly shook his head and concluded his toilet, meditating gloomily the while on the unpleasant idiosyncrasies of every one he knew. To see Devon turn sudden ly into a loafer upset all his theories as well as his plans.

Laurie, for some reason, dawdled more than usual that morning. It was after eleven before he went to breakfast. An hour earlier Bangs departed alone for their pet restaurant.

The girl in the mirror remained at her window for a long time, and Laurie watched her in growing fascination. It was not until she rose and disappeared that he felt moved to consider so sordid a question as that of food.

He joined Bangs just as that youth was finishing his after-breakfast cigar. Even under its soothing influence, he was in the mood of combined exasperation and depression with which his friends were becoming familiar.

"If we had begun work as soon as we got back to town after your sister's wedding," he told Laurie, "we'd have had two acts ready by now, in the rough."

"No reason why you shouldn't have four acts ready, so far as I can see," murmured Laurie, cheerfully attacking his grape fruit. "All you've got to do is write 'em."

Bangs lips set.

"Not till I've talked 'em over with you and got your ideas," he declared, positively. "If you'd just let me give you an outline—"

Laurie set down his cup.

"Do I get my breakfast in peace, or don't I?" he demanded, coldly.

"You do, confound you!"

Bangs bit off the end of a fresh cigar and smoked it in stolid silence. He was a person of one idea. If he couldn't talk about the play, he couldn't talk at all. He meditated, considering his characters, his situations, his partner's and his own position, in a mental jumble that had lately become habitual and which was seriously affecting his nerves. Laurie, as he ate, chatted cheerfully and at random, apparently avoiding with care any subject that might interest his partner. Bangs rose abruptly.

"Well, I'm off," he said. "See you at dinner time, I suppose."

But Laurie, it appeared, had engagements. He was taking a party of friends out to Gedney Farms that evening, in his new car, and they might decide to stay there for a day or two. Also, though he did not confide this fact to Bangs, he had an engagement for the afternoon, at a place where the card rooms were quiet and elegant and the stakes high.

The attraction of these diversions filled his mind. He quite forgot the girl in the mirror, and it was no thought of her that drew him back to New York that night. The plans of his guests had changed, that was all. The change brought him home at eleven o'clock.

He fell asleep with surprising ease, and immediately, as it seemed, he saw the girl in the mirror. She was walking toward him, through what appeared to be a heavy fog. Her hands were outstretched to him, and he hurried to meet her; but even as he did so the fog closed down and he lost her, though he seemed to hear her voice, calling him from somewhere far away.

He awoke late in the morning with every deatil of the dream vivid in his mind, so vivid, indeed, that when he approached the mirror after his morning plunge, it seemed almost a continuation of the dream to find the girl there.

He stopped short with a chuckle. The curtains of his French window were drawn apart, and in the mirror he saw the reflection of the girl as she stood in profile near her own uncurtained window and slowly dressed her hair.

It was wonderful hair, much more wonderful down than up. Laurie stared with pleasure at the red-gold mass that fell down over the girl's white garment. Then with a little shock, he realized that the white garment was a night-dress. It was evident that the girl thought herself safe from observation and was quietly making her toilet for the morning.

Well, she should be safe. With a quick jerk, Laurie drew together the heavy curtains that hung at the sides of the long window. Then, smiling a little, he slowly dressed. His thoughts dwelt on the girl. It was odd that she should be literally projected into his life in that unusual fashion. He had never had any such experience before, nor had he heard of one just like it. It was unique and pleasant. It was especially pleasant to have her so young and so charming to look at. He wished he knew her name and something more about her. His thoughts were full of her.

Before he left the room he parted the curtains again to open the window wide, following his usual program. As he did so he glanced into his mirror. He saw her open window, but it was lifeless. Only his own disappointed face confronted him.

Croquet Is Popular Pastime at Paris, Mo.

On Two Sand Courts Equipped With Electric Lights, Members Play Night And Day.

Paris, Mo., Aug. 2.—Golf, tennis, and polo may rise and wane in popularity but croquet goes on forever as the all-absorbing sport of this community.

Established since the days of hoop-skirts and bustles croquet continues to outrank all sports. For the past 20 years a croquet club has dominated the town's sporting life.

The club now has two excellent sand courts, equipped with electric lights and the members play daily from noon till ten o'clock at night, with the exception of Sunday when even croquet gives way to the Sabbath calm.

There are 27 members in the club, most of whom live in Paris. Several, however come from a distance. William Dobson, who is about 50 years old, drives ten miles every Saturday in a buggy to come to Paris for his regular game of croquet. Judge E. M. Lipp comes in nine miles from his farm almost every day. Other country members come like distances to have their game.

The members vary in age from 85 years down to 25 but the majority are past 50. T. T. Rhodes, president of the club, has been a member since its organization. The expenses of the group, such as caring for the courts, are met by assessments, which usually amount to $1 a month per member.

The men become very proficient in the game and often play round the court without losing a shot. The favorite number for a game is four. This club often plays in tournament with the members of the Country Club, and in the last meet, three weeks ago, the Croquet Club won.

Members of the club recently made the serious mistake of installing a telephone on the grounds. This made it too easy for the solicitious wives to call their husbands home. The phone was soon taken out and now the members play in peace.

The gravel road leading from Paris had its inception in the croquet club. Some years ago Lewis Phillips, a member who lives six miles north of Paris, was unable to come to town for his regular game because of the bad roads. He began agitation among the club members for a gravel road. They in turn interested the farmers along the route in the project, and now Phillips can meet his appointments at the club, rain or shine.

Central College Sues for Endowment Funds

Alleges Institution At Glasgow Has Ceased To Function and Money Should Be Available.

Fayette, Mo., Aug. 2.—Attorney General North T. Gentry, at the instance of the board of curators of Central College here, has begun a suti in equity in the circuit court of Howard county to determine the disposition of the property and endowment funds of Pritchett College and Morrison Observatory at Glasgow.

The petition states that for several years past the income of the endowment funds of the college and observatory have been diverted from the purpose of which they were dedicated, and that the college and observatory have ceased to function and fulfill the purpose of theis founders and of the articles of incorporation. It is asked that the observatory and the endowment funds be turned over to Central College to be administered in the interest of astronomical science and research, as provided in the declaration of trust.

The petition also states that in case the observatory and endowment are turned over to Central College the college will forever maintain the same in the present location and in accordance with the declaration of trust, and that it will expend not less than $5,000 to put in new instruments as may be required, and will put the present equipment in shape for practical astronomical science and research.

In addition, the petition asks that the court determine the disposition to be made of the college grounds and buildings.

IRRITATING CAUSES OF A SORE THROAT

Mouth Breathing, an Infection from the Ear or from Bad Teeth, and Rapid Travel Often Result in Periodic "Quinsy."

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Perhaps you never had a sore throat. Lots of people never suffer in this way. On the other hand, there are those who have the most violent "quinsy" every Spring and Fall.

Some persons appear never to be affected by cold or dust or irritating vapors. They can face any sort of exposure or circumstance without disaster. Then there are persons who appear to take cold every day. They sneeze and cough and blow their noses and suffer from sore throat all the time. They dare not venture out when there is an east wind for fear of contracting illness.

I sometimes wonder if Nature has not furnished tissues of this sort to persons who need to be careful about exposure. They suffer so much from the local symptoms I have described that they take good care of themselves in the hope of escaping trouble. By avoiding these first symptoms they escape the greater danger of bronchitis or more serious lung trouble.

When there is a tendency to throat trouble and taking cold on the slightest exposure, it is well to have a general physical examination made to see what is wrong. There may be some underlying trouble which is responsible for the symptoms.

You cannot expect to have a healthy throat if, in its neighborhood, there is some pus infection. Many a person goes through life with a running ear. It dates back to scarlet fever perhaps. No matter what its original cause, the suppuration has continued through the years. You can see that in a case like this the pus will escape through the tube which runs from the ear to the nose and will find its way down the back of the throat. An abscessed tooth or pussy gums may be the focus and the tongue may permit growth of germs which will be transmitted to the tonsils or other tissues of the throat.

Nature never intended anybody to be a mouth breather. If the air is taken in through the mouth instead of the nose it dries the tissues of the throat and produces irritation. This prepares the way for inflammation and infection. Breathing bad air, such as is found in a poorly ventilated place of assemblage, is another possible factor in the development of a sore throat. Sleeping in a stuffy, dusty bedroom is an evil practice.

Every invention brings with it evils as well as blessings. Rapid travel in the automobile against the air and dust must produce some irritation of the nose and throat. Travel in express trains and indeed all the modern modes of travel are more or less irritating to the breathing apparatus.

There is another cause of throat trouble which I desire to mention. I refer to the taking of excessively hot drinks.

Any one of these things must be thought of as a possible cause of local conditions which will produce a painful and disagreeable throat affliction.

Answers To Health Queries.

Ruth R. Q.—Will peroxide have a tendency to make superfluous hair less noticeable?

A.—Peroxide will bleach the hair and thus make it less noticeable.

I. V. S. Q.—What should a girl weigh who is twenty-two years of age and five feet eight inches tall?

2.—Are corn bread and buttermilk fat-producing foods?

A.—For her age and height she should weigh about 142 pounds.

2.—Corn bread is not as fattening as it is nutritious. Ordinary buttermilk that is sold in drug stores is fattening. Real country buttermilk that has had the cream removed is not.

E. J. B. L. Q.—What should a woman of forty-five, five feet five inches tall, weigh? If overweight—I weigh 170 pounds—what should I do to reduce?

A.—You should weigh about 145 pounds. A restricted diet in regard to sweets and starches, plenty of outdoor exercise, etc., should all help you to reduce. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Indians Sue U. S. A. for $1,250,000,000

Red Men Claim That Government Took Lands, Failed to Educate Children, and Caused Losses.

Washington, Aug 2.—Thirty-five Indian tribes have damage suits aggregating $1,250,000,000 pending against the United States in the U. S. court of claims, it was learned at the justice department today.

Alleging forty-five causes for action, the Sioux Nation is attempting to collect $800,000,000 from the government. The Indians charge Uncle Sam took the Black Hills of North and South Dakota without adequate compensation, failed to educate their children as required under a treaty of 1869; permitted citizens to destroy their buffalo and misappropriated or diverted to purposes not authorized large sums of money belong to the Sioux.

Delaware Indians seek to recover $1,500,000. This tribue contends a government clerk years ago stole about $800,000 worth of state bonds belonging to the nation and that the government in making reimbursements failed to pay full value.

Executive orders took away millions of acres of their lands, the Arikara, Brosentre and Mandan Indians of North Dakota charge in suing the government for more than $134,000,000.

Others suing for alleged treaty rights, confiscated hunting privileges and appropriated lands include the Stockbridges for $180,000; Choctaw nation, $170,000; Iowa tribe, $353,000; Kansas or Kaw tribe, $63,649,000; Llamath, Modoc and Yankooskin Snake Indians, $14,500,000; Flandreau band, $475,000; Osage nation, $3,240,000; Wichita tribe $11,287,000.

Internal Harmony

A statistical report issued recently by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), reveals a remarkable accord between management and employes of the Company. It shows complete agreement in 90% of the matters considered by the Joint General Committees, under the Industrial Relations Plan since its adoption in 1919.

It is noteworthy that in the few cases of disagreement, the differences were not over such vital subjects as wages, hours and working conditions, but related to subjects of minor importance.

This report is conclusive evidence of the internal harmony which manifests itself in many ways.

A feeling of good fellowship prevails among the employes, and between the employes and the management.

Wherever a group of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) employes are working—at an oil well—in the laboratory—refinery—or service station—an atmosphere of good-will and friendliness is apparent.

This internal harmony is reflected in the attitude of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) employes toward the people they serve. The harmony prevailing within is radiated without the organization. The consuming public receives the benefit in friendly, cheerful, competent service.

The comradeship that exists throughout the entire organization of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been definitely strengthened by such measures as the Industrial Relations and Stock Purchasing Plans.

The human, personal character of the organization is the inspiration back of the various measures which promote internal harmony.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) always has believed that mere magnitude of numbers does not alter the human characteristics and relationships of a group.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) works on the theory that a working force of 29,000 men and women should be bound together by the common ties of sympathy and friendship which unite a small family group. The size of the group heightens, rather than minimizes, the importance of the individual.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a huge organization, whose success depends upon the earnest effort of each of the 29,000 individuals who constitute the whole.

Through this harmonious and co-operative working of the organization as a whole, the management is achieving the goal set for the Company, i.e., to render such a broad and comprehensive service as to merit the respect and esteem of the thirty million people of the Middle West.

THE CANDIDATES

Who Missouri's Senatorial Candidates Are and What They Stand for.

W. Blodgett Priest

W. Blodgett Priest of St. Louis, a candidate for the Republican nomination for both the long and short terms for United States Senator upon a platform demanding the modification of the Volstead law to permit the manufacture and sale of beer and wine, was born in Webster Groves, July 13, 1888.

He was educated in the public schools of St. Louis, Smith's Academy, Lawrenceville Preparatory School at Lawrenceville, N. J., and at Westminster College at Fulton.

He received his law degree from St. Louis Law School, now a part of Washington University. He entered the practice of law in 1910.

Priest is the son of former Judge Henry S. Priest and is associated with his father in the practice of law.

First Attempt.

He has never held elective office, but served during the early period of the war as associate counsel for the United States Emergency Fleet Corporation. Priest ran for the Republican nomination for Circuit Judge in St. Louis in 1918 and again in 1922, but was defeated in each race.

He resigned the post to enter the army. He was a member of the Fifth Battalion of the Central Officers Training School, which was located at Camp Pike, Ark. Before he received his commission the war ended.

Priest has been twice married. He was divorced in 1919 by Mrs. Marjorie Everts Priest, whom he married in 1909. Two children were born to them, Jean, 17, and Blodgett, Jr., 15. The latter is in military college at Mexico, Mo.

Priest's present wife was Miss Asenath Cox, a daughter of Frederick I. Cox, a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. They were married in May, 1923. They reside at 6043 Clements avenue, St. Louis.

His father is prominent in Democratic politics and was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in 1920 and for the nomination for Governor in 1924. In both races he ran upon a platform demanding the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Against World Court.

There are two principal planks in Priest's platform. He is against the World Court, charging that it is the offspring of the League of Nations and calculated to get the United States into trouble with foreign powers. He is against the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law and declares he will work for the repeal of both.

Priest has been pushing his candidacy in wet territory, notably in St. Louis, St. Louis County, St. Joseph, Kansas City and the counties of Osage, Gasconade, Warren, St. Charles, Franklin, Perry, Ste. Genevieve and Cape Girardeau.

His platform is almost identical with that upon which William Sacks of St. Louis, oil operator, ran in 1922 and received a total of 67,500 votes, of which 43,000 approximately were cast for him in St. Louis.

Priest is Senator Williams' only opponent for the short term for United States Senator, that is the term beginning with the November election and ending March 4, 1927.

Priest has considerable organization support in St. Louis. He has the backing of Fred W. Pape, Park Commissioner and Eleventh Ward Committeeman. Pape's ward organization lined up for Priest when it became apparent that David M. Proctor, Mayor Miller's choice, would not command strength in that ward. Priest is said to have other committee following and his name may go upon the slates in a number of wards.

Staunch Wet.

If elected to the United States Senate Priest says he will vote wet irrespective of how Missouri goes in the referendum on the state dry law in November.

In opening his campaign in St. Louis Priest laid stress upon the necessity of bringing the government back to first principles.

"We must get back to the home and local self-government, which best governs, because it least governs; that government that has no inducement to usurpation, corruption and extravagance; those laws that are the custom of the neighborhood and grow out of their fair conduct of the neighborhood; that are made of custom and constitute sentiments of enlightened justice consistent with the fundamentals of personal liberty.

"We have thousands and thousands of laws to catch the unwary and to protect the unjust. No man in a lifetime can read them all. Their multitude seems designed to keep the people in ignorance. They seem to be intended to make places for spending the taxes gathered from the people."

Urges Farm Relief.

Priest advocates farm relief and said that the farmers have not the "conveniences nor the means to sit at the steps of the halls of Congress to guard against the insidious legislation launched in the interest of those who deal in domestic and foreign traffic. While they toil others weave an ensnaring web."

In St. Louis some of the Proctor managers are urging committeemen and committeewomen, supposedly hostile to Williams, to line up for Priest, if they cannot deliver to Proctor, because of his dry platform.

Priest's managers say that alluring proposals have been made to him to withdraw from the race, which would enhance the chances of Senator Williams, but that he had spurned them all.

Few politicians expect him to be nominated. Many astute politicians regard his candidacy as decidedly helpful to Proctor, who seems Williams' closest contender. The value of Priest's candidacy to Proctor lies in the fact that every vote he gets probably would go to Williams were he not in the race.

Priest has a Campaign Committee, of which Hugh K. Wagner, an attorney, is chairman. Louis H. Zepp, who managed William Sacks' wet drive in 1922, is manager for Priest. F. Ernst Cramer is treasurer of his committee. He has headquarters at 1125 Locust street.

Think Most Smugglers American Citizens

U. S. Attorneys Prepare for New Attacks On Law Breakers—Hope For Additional Treaties.

Washington, Aug. 2.—A survey by prohibition intelligence officers has revealed that the majority of rum runners attempting to smuggle liquor into the United States are American citizens operating under a foreign flag.

Government attorneys are trying to determine whether Americans, who register ships in foreign countries and then operate them in violation of United States laws can be prosecuted.

Plans are also being made to hold informal conferences with ambassadors and ministers here to seek foreign nations' aid in refusing registration permits to ships operating as rum runners.

Officials believe the smugglers now operating under the British flag will seek to have their registration transferred to other countries before the new anti-smuggling agreement between the United States and Great Britain is put into effect. Federal dry leaders want to check any concentrated movement to change registration, thus ultimately putting the bootleg ships out of business.

The United States now has anti-smuggling treaties with Great Britain, Canada, Mexico and Cuba. Officials hope to arrange similar agreements with the South and Central American governments, Germany, France, Belgium, Italy and Spain.

Lexington—The 387,588 acres of land in Lafayette County has a total valuation of $43,103,170, the county tax books disclose. County personal property is valued at $8,562,115 and town lots, $7,112,605.

Lebanon—The annual county-wide farmer's picnic will be held in Gasconade Park here on August 11.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Wheat slumped sharply under pressure of bearish news on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Despite a feeble rally near the close, prices were 3⅞ to 4¼ cents lower than Saturday.

Cash prices suffered a drastic setback, being from six to 9 cents off at Chicago.

Corn shows the effect of the July wheat. Corn closed ⅜ to 1 cent higher. Cash values were about unchanged.

News on oats was bullish, but prices slumped with wheat.

Provisions, particularly lard, were lower on the heavy hog receipts, the dip in wheat values and stop loses in lard.

MERCHANTS IN ONE-SIDED WIN

SHENANDOAH TEAM DEFEATED IN GAME HERE YESTERDAY.

A SCORE OF 13 TO 3

Roy Arthur Leads Maryville Hitting And Buhler Performs Well In Box.—Visitors Use Two Pitchers.

With everything from home runs to a pitcher knocked out of the box as features, the Maryville Merchants won from the Shenandoah Merchants yesterday in a 13-3 baseball game. A large crowd attended the game, which was played at the Fairgrounds.

Roy Arthur, Maryville third baseman, led the hitting spree which prefaced the local victory, with four hits and two runs, one clout being for four bases. Mayes, second baseman, got three hits and two runs, one also a homer.

Buhler, on the mound for Maryville, recorded thirteen strike outs and allowed but five hits. Shenandoah scored all of her runs in the sixth, off a walk, a double, and two singles, the latter being a ball that should have been fielded.

Two pitchers held the rubber for the visitors, but could not stop the Maryville hitting.

Maryville was short the services of three men yesterday, Iba, Lyle and Woolen. All three being out of town but will be back in the line-up next Sunday.

Next Sunday Hopkins will come to Maryville for a game. These two teams have met twice this year and the games resulted for a victory for each team on their home diamond.

MRS. CARMODY WAS KILLED

SISTER OF G. F. DAVIS OF THIS CITY FOUND SLAIN.

FUNERAL HELD TODAY

Mystery Surrounds Death of Mrs. Carmody of Champaign, Ill.—Body Arrived Here Yesterday.

Mrs. Anna Carmody, 52 years old, sister of George Fred Davis of Maryville, was found murdered at 12:30 o'clock Friday afternoon on Prospect Avenue in Champaign, Ill., one mile south of the Champaign Country Club, according to dispatches from that city. The body of Mrs. Carmody arrived in Maryville yesterday.

Authorities of that city believe that the person who shot and killed Morgan Knox, negro porter, and left his body on a country road ten days ago, also killed Mrs. Carmody, who is reputed to be quite wealthy. Mrs. Carmody, like Knox, had been shot through the right temple. The weapon with which she had been slain lay at her left side.

Coroner Strode of Champaign is quoted as saying:

"It may be suicide. Everything is placed so that it looks like suicide. But I believe it is more likely a case of murder."

A coroner's inquest is to be held at Champaign tomorrow. The coroner's jury viewed the body before it left Champaign and adjourned until tomorrow.

Dr. Frank C. Wallis of this city who viewed the body here yesterday says there were no powder burns on the temple of Mrs. Carmody, indicating it was not a case of suicide.

The dispatches say Mrs. Carmody carried insurance of about $75,000. It was reported that she had within the past few days made provisions for disposal of her property.

Besides the brother in Maryville, Mrs. Carmody is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Minge and Mrs. Glenn Carmer of Bloomington, Ill., and two brothers, B. F. and Emanuel Davis of Kansas City.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Price Funeral chapel, conducted by Dr. C. C. James, pastor of the First Methodist Church. Burial was in Miriam cemetery.

The body was accompanied to Maryville last night by Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Carmer and daughter, Leatrice, and Dr. and Mrs. Minge and daughter, Beverly, of Bloomington, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Davis of Kansas City.

901 At Sunday School At Christian Church

475 In Keller Bible Class—Sets New Attendance Record.—Glenn and Keller Receive Gifts.

Nine hundred and one persons attended Sunday School at the Christian Church yesterday morning. This is the largest number that has attended in several years.

Four hundred and seventy-five College students attended the Keller Bible Class, which is the largest number ever to have attended this class. The previous high mark was 440.

Upon behalf of the class, Paul Stone, president, presented Dr. Keller with a check for $50 in appreciation of his work as teacher of the class. E. W. Glenn, superintendent of the Sunday School, was presented with a Gladstone bag by the adult department of the Sunday school.

Resolutions of appreciation for the work of Mr. Glenn, Dr. Keller and Loren Schnabel were read by W. E Goforth, chairman of a committee appointed from the Men's Bible Class. The other members of the committee were P. R. Moore and Hugh Strong. The resolutions lauded the work of these three men in church and Sunday school activities.

Several hundred students, members of the Keller class, miraculously escaped injury yesterday morning when temporary seats just east of the church building collapsed while the class was preparing to have a photograph taken. The students were on the seats when they fell but only two were injured. They received but a few scratches.

Although the actual count showed 901 persons in Sunday school, it is believed that the attendance was considerably more than that. When the temporary seats collapsed, a number of persons rushed out from the building and were late in returning. It is not known whether or not all of these were counted. An attendance goal of 1,000 had been set.

Cooper Gooden Back "as Fit as a Fiddle"

Cooper Gooden, 86-year-old youngster who can hold his own with men twenty years younger, returned home yesterday after a three-weeks sojourn on his farm, two miles north of Ravenwood. He performed various tasks on his farm and returned to Maryville "as fit as a fiddle," he said.
